Description
Hi,
I was fooling around with a drop-ship for kerbals with command seats.
While testing this out I came over a rather strange bug. every time I left the command seat after trying to sit in it, the kerbal was transported to the top of the vessel. After trying several different angles and surfaces I ended up making a testing craft for it. and shure enough, the kerbal is transported 8m up into the air and onto a platform. I made a craft for testing it out. No mods are installed. This allways happends when leaving a command seat while a structure panel is above it.
I have only tested this on a windows distro. No bugs where

- Severity changed from High to Low

Though this is a little bit of an odd occurence, it does not affect the fundamentals of game play. As such, I'm lowering the priority.

- Status changed from Confirmed to Updated

I tried this several times in version 1.7.2 and was unable to reproduce. I don't think it's an issue anymore
