Description

Many staged parts have a "Disable Staging" option but not all. For instance, parachutes do not have such an option. However, I have often wanted to disable staging of parachutes. One example is for aircraft that aren't supposed to need them but I would like them available as an emergency option. Another use would be to get rid of normal stages entirely for spacecraft and have some of the numbered action groups used instead of staging. For simple craft this could clear up a bit of visual space while still not being too confusing. Another example is when a parachute is supposed to be triggered by an action group. It can usually be placed such that it won't be triggered earlier, however it would nice for the stage list to be less cluttered.
